SPRING TRAINING TRIPS PLANNED BY FRANK J. NAVIN

President of Detroit Baseball Club Declares Preposterous Proposition Made By Players, Asking for Pay While Getting Into Shape.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 9.—President Frank J. Navin of the Detroit Tigers says that it would be "futile" to make good on the demand proposed by their new fraternity for salary during the spring training trips. He declares it would result in the club owners' bankruptcy.

"In the early days of baseball there were no spring trips," he says. "The players were expected to get into condition by the summer of each year. It was not until the late 1800s that the spring training trips were introduced."

"There is not a club owner who cares a snap of his fingers whether the men go south or not, as long as they appear at the beginning of the season ready to play ball. The value of every man in the service is rendered. If he is not in condition at the beginning of the season he can't play."

"For my part I believe that spring training trips are of little value except to the players. It does do good in getting them into shape. But the other men can get into condition in the north if it need be. It was thought once that the spring trip was a good chance to get a line on the youngsters. However, we have come to the conclusion that it is better to have the youngsters report in the fall. We certainly can see better what they can do while they are in their last shape in the fall than when they are getting hardened up in the spring."

"So it seems unfair that the players should even mention getting paid for the spring trips."

The fact that Donie Bush didn't report until the opening of the season last spring and was in as good condition as the men who went north has a good deal to do with Mr. Navin's opinion.

SPORTING BREVITIES OFF THE WIRE.

New York—"Knockout" Brown, the east side lightweight, easily defeated Young Riley, also of this city, in a ten round bout here last night.

Los Angeles—A flood of Flynn money has been turned loose here, and the Pacific freeman, who a few days ago, was a short-term in the betting on his fight with Luther McCarthy Tuesday night, became a 10 to 1 favorite. It was announced that the freeman weighed 187½ and would go into the ring at 190. As McCarthy is expected to weigh between 200 and 205, the weight handicap against Flynn will not be as heavy as it first thought.

London—Johnnie Sommers last night won the welterweight championship of Great Britain, from Sid Burns on points. The fight took place at the National Sporting Club. Both fighters hail from London.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Mr. Wm. Patterson of Winamac, Indiana, who was in chow a few months ago prospecting, and who returned with his family a few days ago, is there now getting ready to put in what promises to be one of the biggest and best crockery, produce and poultry concerns in the state.

The board of trustees of the town of Las Cruces has brought suit against the National Surety company of New York for $5,000 for alleged failure of Branch & Gray, contractors, to fulfill contract for a sewer system and water works. The papers are served on the state insurance commissioner.

The Saguaparra Mining company, a million dollar concern, of Arizona, has been admitted to New Mexico. Its office is "On Property," Grant county, with postoffice address at Lordsburg. John H. Williams is the statutory agent.

The Taton Reporter, under the new management and editorship of Byron L. Connell is a live wire and effective booster for the gate city.

J. L. Hubbel of Glendale, Arizona, has secured the contract for carrying the mail from Glendale to Kearns Canyon, and for this and other purposes he will put on a train of four autos. The passenger traffic is also very heavy between these two points and it will be necessary to have four cars to accommodate the large trade. The principal object of the auto route is to connect the outlying points with Glendale which is the great distributing center.

FLYNN-McCARTHY GO PUZZLES THE TALENT

Both Men Take Turns as Favorites in the Betting on Outcome of First of Heavy-weight Elimination Trials.

(By Leased Wire to Evening Herald)
Los Angeles, Dec. 10.—Until the going tape at 10 o'clock tonight for their twenty-round fight, the battle situation as between Luther McCarthy, the Missouri "white hope," and Jim Flynn of Pueblo, will remain as puzzling to forecasters as the late California political situation.
Up to and beyond the final hour today, first McCarthy and then Flynn slid into the position of favorite. Wagers changed their minds often and the odds were unsteady late in the day.
Flynn said today he expected to enter the ring weighing about 190. McCarthy tips the scales at about 205.

The Old Pecos Indian Pueblo; a Novel Exposition Idea

By Col. R. E. Twitchell in Denver Post.

No state in the union will have a more unique or interesting building at the Panama-California Exposition, at San Diego, in 1915, than New Mexico. Originally is the keynote of the San Diego Exposition, and if the recommendations of the New Mexico state commissioners are carried out, New Mexico will hold first place in the originality of its building.

It is proposed to reproduce the old Catholic Mission and Convent at the Pueblo of Pecos.

The interior of the church proper will be used for assembly purposes. Here will be shown, by moving pictures, all industries of the state.

Formerly installed in the heavy walls of the interior of the church will be found one of the most interesting archaeological, ethnological and historical exhibits in the world. Old paintings of priceless value, relics of the Spaniards and other interesting exhibits taken from the great communal houses of the Pajarito plateau, under the direction of the New Mexico state museum, will appear in the tower, the scholar and the scientist.

The twenty-six rooms of the convent, adjoining the mission, surrounding two large patios, will be devoted to exhibits from each county of the state.

PUEBLO FIRST KNOWN TO SPANIARDS IN 1609.

The ruins of the old Pecos church, the convent and the nearby Pueblo of Cleve are to be found near the village of Rowe, on the line of the Santa Fe railway. It was by the name of Cleve that the pueblo where this church and convent were built was first known to the Spaniards, explorers in the sixteenth century.

Eighty years before the pilgrims landed upon the inhospitable shores of the New England coast the Spaniard had visited this pueblo and found there, living in the many-chambered houses, a community estimated by the historians of the Coronado expedition to have numbered about 1,000 souls.

The pueblo could muster and maintain a standing army, at the time of the coming of Coronado, of 500 men.

Passing the station of Rowe, in a few minutes the ruins first strike the view. The old red walls, fast crumbling, stand boldly out upon the little tableland, and just beyond and to the north are two low, brown ridges, the remains of the old communal houses where lived at the time of Coronado more people than in any other single community within what are now the boundaries of the United States.

Amid the ruins, a wide, circular depression strikes the eye; beyond, flat mounds covered with scattered and broken stones; further, distinct foundations, rectangles inclosed by walls, immediately to the north, more broken walls of stone, and above them all, on a broad terrace of bright red earth, completely shutting off the site of the old pueblo dwellings, may be seen what is left of the ancient Catholic mission of Pecos.

The building was a rectangle, originally about 150 feet in length from east to west and about sixty feet from north to south. The entrance was to the west, the eastern wall still standing in part. Twenty-five years ago the gateways were capped by heavy lintels of hewn cedar. These lintels have been carried away by the vandals and the relic hunter.

INDIAN STEAL BELL AND SHAMEN.

As late as 1880 the roof was still upon the building. The church was probably about thirty-five feet high. According to tradition it had but one bell and a single bell, but a very large one. The Indians from the pueblo of San Cristobal in 1880 carried it off, so it is said, to the top of the mesa, where it was broken.

All the old beams of the church were quickly carved. The fact is, the ruins of the church are a monument to the army of occupation in 1880.

The walls of the structure have an average thickness of six feet. The adobe bricks were made in the usual manner as those of today. When dry, they are found in their original position, the great pieces of bricks and broken pottery. The adobe bricks were made, some of the building itself. On the right side of the church, near the ruins, there is a

ELECTRIC COMPANY TO SPEND $400,000

Immense Sums to Be Expended in Developing Valuable Agricultural Properties at Artesia and Vicinity.

Artesia, N. M., Dec. 7.—John C. Keys, president of the Artesia Light and Power company and owner of numerous other electrical properties in the southwest announced this week that he had made arrangements to expend the sum of $400,000 in developing his property in Artesia. That amount spent in any enterprise would mean much to the country, but to be spent as this is, for a pumping plant that will insure irrigation for thousands of acres of land which is at present undeveloped means that the middle valley will double in population and wealth within the next three years.

A pumping line has already been built seven and one-half miles southwest of town, into one of the first bodies of land in eastern New Mexico. What improvements have been put on this land before now were simply in the way of augmenting water with the exception of a few patches here and there where the owners pumped water with gasoline engines. This one line alone opens up several townships for cultivation. As the need calls for them, other lines in other directions will be established, until the whole unirrigated middle valley is brought under the plow.

The engines of the first unit of the plant, developing 450 horse power, were shipped last week from the factory. This small item of freight on the engines will amount to $2,500. The generator has also been shipped, and the switchboard and other fixtures are on the way. Once this equipment arrives in Artesia it will be but a few weeks, or perhaps a few days, until the new plant is running.

The men started work on the roof of the new building Monday and before the new machinery arrives everything will be in readiness to install it.
